Response to Statement #1:

Before we begin to even dissect this document that has been made against us, one glaring point must be made. Indica has prevented us from gaining access to the chats that we had together. Our personal private conversations that they make constant and explicit references to are not accessible to us. They will claim this is because of their own privacy but the reality is that they removed my access so we could not defend ourselves from their false claims. Instead, they've only given out snippets. We have made several attempts to regain access to these chats, including speaking with Discord themselves, but alas the chats are not available. Which is why we want to calmly and strongly say that Indica: Give us access back to the chats. All of them. If what you say is true and what we say is false, you should back it up by letting us see the unredacted chats. No deleting messages, no hiding incriminating proof, the whole thing. The good, the bad and especially the ugly. For both of us. We have the chance to be more transparent than an invisible glass of water.

Without further ado, here is our response to your claims:

> "I hate to come back for the stupidest of reasons but when people really don't want to shut up about me and act like I'm the one stalking them it really pisses me off + shoving words in my mouth that I did not do/say." [1]

To be absolutely honest, both of our mains are public. Anybody with a Twitter page can view them and because of this, it's more akin to a public notice than a private domicile. So for that, we apologise for calling you a stalker. But it needs to be said that we have not willingly made any effort to view any of your accounts unless someone has brought attention to a post targeted at us or our friends. This has given us a myopic view of your internet activity and made us wrongly believe that you've spent more time talking about us than other topics. However, we do find your abject denial of some of the things you have said and done to us and others we care about to be completely incomprehensible. Some of it is even proven just by your own public statements, including the document we are responding to right now which we will be getting into later. In the end, this should not have gotten this far but the thirst for drama has always been something you cannot quench.

"Yes this is about Solar again and [your friend]. Mainly about [your friend] because they are emotionally draining and stalking me constantly, even went as far as to find my separate account which I keep away from this one for obvious fucking reasons" [1]

Firstly, due to my friend's wish to remain anonymous I will replace its name in your quotes with something more generic. However, I will mention a glaring mistake. The misspelling of its name in the original text. It is a close and dear friend of mine, a friend who you have no excuse to get their name wrong after this long. If this mistake is purposeful, we find it to be highly disrespectful and racist. My friend is a proud Palestinian-American and will not stand for such low-handed insults to their name, especially someone who once named themselves after a strain of weed. We're also correcting your incorrect pronoun use.

My friend has been defending me and informing me about your attacks. It has been defending me, non-stop, from your tirade of abusive language and allegations. It's only been reactive to your claims, not instigative. This "emotional draining" would not be happening if you decided to hash out these problems privately and not for the world to see. This is a situation created by your own undoing.

My friend was not the one to find this account. The person who found the account, who shall not be named, discovered you were the owner of it and brought this to our attention as they were informed about your behaviour. You've also posted similar content to your main which disproves your purported valiant effort to separate these two accounts, I guess the reasons aren't too "fucking obvious".

To view archives of some of the SH/ED tweets posted by Dove to their main page, please click here.

"Here is the tread [your friend] made on me, and I'll start off by saying yes I'm the owner of the SH/ED account. I however do not post gore to minors and all the stuff I have posted has been properly tagged so minors can't interact with it. I've never interacted with a minor in a sexual way, nor do I plan to. " [1]

It should be stressed, Dove has minors following and is actively following minors on this account.

To be clear, we are not accusing Dove of any direct inappropriate behaviour towards these teenagers. However, what we are saying is that your statement that this account does not show inappropriate content nor exposes minors to such content isn't true. And even if your claims that you properly label your content so these individuals aren't exposed to it are true, studies have shown that the community in of itself is a hazard towards children, teenagers and young adults.

In a 2025 study published by the Online Journal of Communication and Media Technologies, in reference to the harm that the Twitter community you are explicitly apart of, they say this on the topic of the harm the SH/ED community can do to minors:

> "The impact that these violent images have on young people is very harmful to their mental health, [and] may cause the normalization, imitation, and romanticization of self-harm. It also produces in adolescents, who regularly consume this content, the feeling of belonging to a group, which reinforces the phenomenon of self-harm." [5]

Similarly, in a 2022 report by Rutgers University and the NCRI, they explain the community's culture as this:

> Online communities that celebrate psychopathology and self-harm are not new. In these cases, the online forum acts as an incubator; an environment that both normalizes the behavior and creates a culture that is both supportive and competitive. It is supportive in that it affirms and celebrates cutting. It is competitive in that it encourages people in distress––including adolescents––to increase the severity of their self-inflicted wounds as part of a process of "gamifying" self-harm. [6]

Now, you may say this community isn't about glorifying or gamifying eating disorders and self harm and that not all of these self harm communities are about the celebration of such things which the same report also states:

> "Some of these communities are tightly moderated and operate primarily as vehicles for people engaging in self-harm to get help. For example, some serve as a resource to communicate and relieve distress, acting as a support network that encourages people engaging in harmful behaviors to get help. Online communities serving such functions are not the focus of this report. Our focus is Twitter communities that celebrate, glorify, validate, and encourage those who engage in self-harm to continue and escalate self-injurious behavior." [7]

However, judging by the types of accounts that you interact with, this is not the community you may believe yourself to be a part of. The report goes on to accurately describe the dangers the reality of SH/ED Twitter does to younger people:

"It is also a distinct possibility that as a result of an algorithm, young people seeking help to stop harming themselves could find themselves, instead, exposed to communities that encourage and celebrate their compulsion to cut themselves. Twitter hosts a similar community of young people with anorexia, gamifying another life-threatening disorder... Like children who find praise, encouragement, and instruction for slicing into their flesh with knives and razors, anorexics find a similar community on Twitter to reinforce their disorder. Both disorders can be life-threatening." [8]

The reason we are so knowledgeable on this subject is because we, admittedly, were once a member of this community. We saw the harm it was doing to others and how that harm can spread and corrupt. We too also believed it was a community just for venting and expressing ourselves up until recently, but the darker and more dangerous truth was unavoidable. Now it's disgusting to us. The account is still online as a reminder of what not to be. We last used it at the start of 2025, basically trying to turn it into a shitposting page which obviously didn't work out.

We can confirm that we regret and apologise for this statement that we made last April. The truth is that the community is harmful and vile and we have nothing but contempt for what it has done and is doing to many vulnerable people.

So we ask of you, Dove: Please stop participating in this harmful community that unavoidably hurts children. You are participating in the harm of minors simply by being a small yet noticeable cog in this machine. Being a part of this community is also severely dangerous for yourself as it was with us. You mention in the document that you're suffering from psychosis and paranoia, which being a member of this community will not help at all. The human mind, no matter how broken, is not built to deal with this level of self-induced torment. It's graphic, disturbed and toxic. Please get help.
Your account is themed after a character from the Persona series, a fanbase that includes people of all ages and has ties to larger family friendly franchises such as Super Smash Bros. How can you be sure that a child in that fandom hasn't begun harming themselves as a result of you using their favourite character as indirect encouragement?

It must also be said that engaging in this community could be seen as illegal in your home nation of North Macedonia [10]. So for the safety of yourself and the safety of the people within these communities, please leave them.

Here are some resources for mental health help in North Macedonia:

"Solar has [interacted sexually with minors]. They have received drawn porn of their character and said minors one. Instead of telling them to stop they encouraged their behavior by being excited over their work. Defending it by saying that they get upset when people say that they're a minor and should not be posting porn." [1]

To be absolutely clear, what Dove is referencing here is when I was sexually harassed by a minor who unconsensually drew porn of one of my OCs with their OC. Whilst I hold no ill-will towards the minor and know they can and probably have already learnt from this mistake (which is why I shall be keeping them private), that's what happened to me. My behaviour following the incident (such as making jokes, trying to find justifications to make it not look as bad for the minor, trying to just shrug it off) all came from a place of intense discomfort and prior trauma. Anybody who has been a victim of sexual harassment from individuals who have plausible deniability in regards to their actions (such as the person's age, mental capacity, reputation or disability) understands the mental hurdles that take place after such events.

Here are the messages in question and my response to them immediately afterwards:

So like, yuo should probably not send me that stuff from now on, i understand you dont like people usign age groups but- yeah edit: too many typos i give up fixign them (edited)

To note, the reason I edited the message shortly after sending was because I was extremely uncomfortable and overwhelmed which led me to leave a lot of typos when responding to them. I personally believe I should've been more assertive and strict, however I just couldn't muster it at the time due to the sheer discomfort I was feeling.

The way our discomfort manifests can be seen in one of the screenshots provided by Dove when I informed them about the situation:

As you can see, both me and Dove were equally shocked by the turn of events. However, the way I reacted towards Dove does appear inappropriate which I never intended and for that I apologise. A situation as serious as this should've been dealt with in a serious, calm and collected manner. This is on me and I apologise for my actions.

I will provide more information about the behaviour of this minor, specifically how they acted towards a friend of mine and other examples of their inappropriate behaviour within a group chat, if need be. However I will not reveal who they are. This might sound strange, but I believe they should have room to improve and backlash without doxxing could be the push that they need to become a better person. I will warn people privately about this minor and their behaviour.

"Second; I find it hypocritical that [Solar's friend] of all people found it that it's [its] right to call me emotionally abusive when Solar has been doing the same trick over and over and has caused me to come to a point where I need to stalk their account to feel reassured that they aren't spreading misinformation about me or my friends." [1]

The reason we've called you emotionally abusive is because you constantly threatened to kill yourself over the slightest inconveniences within our relationship. And things alike. We admit that we have occasionally spoke about harming ourselves, but, to what I can remember, it was never to the extent of threatening harm to ourselves and especially not to the point of threatening suicide. We may have discussed the topics of my mental woes, specifically regarding my own issues with self harm and suicidal ideation, but to our knowledge we did not go as far as you did. If there are examples of us going as far as you did, please provide examples so we can take accountability for those actions.

Having a partner constantly put their life and safety on the line over any minor argument or relationship faux pas broke me. So I have been bitter in the past and have said things that were out of pocket regarding yourself. For the mental anguish I have caused you and your friends following the relationship, I am really really sorry. It was uncalled for, immature and uncouth of me. I'm an adult and should've acted like it.

"Third; [your friend] has shown that [it's] mentally abusive and [has] been for awhile by showing a clear disliking towards me and often forcing Solar to come to me to ask me if I want to have a "talk" with [it] because [it] apparently couldn't hold [itself] back from blowing up on me multiple times because [it likes] one side of the coin and will never like the other." [1]

Dove, you are in your twenties now. It should be clear that sometimes, people don't have to like you. It's not "mentally abusive" for someone to not like you or be by your side on every last point. The reason my friend didn't like you was because of the way you treated me. It saw the effect the constant fights and drama was causing me and as that, like any good friend, pissed it off. It never "forced" me to ask you to speak with it. It simply suggested it since it wanted what I was going through to stop and to get the point across to you about the harm you were causing me in those specific situations. It wasn't to scare you away or make you feel like the devil, it was to help you realise the harm you were doing and to improve for the betterment of both of us. It also pointed out and rightfully scolded me about when I was being a bad person, and I accept that I often was. I am not a perfect person. Yes, it cared mainly about me overall, but to claim that it should've played both sides when a lot of the situations that I came to it with were instigated by your own behaviour is absurd. You can't find justification for actions that caused harm through mental illness, you can only admit faults and try to do better as you grow.

"I help Solar out of an abusive relationship? Apparently bad." [1]

You did not help me out of an abusive relationship. You threatened to cut contact with me and block me on all platforms if I didn't leave my abusive ex for you. That's not "saving" me, that's moving me from a burning building to a melting ice cap. From the fire, into the pan.

"I try to show interest in their likings/sources/interests? Bad." [1]

Not once has anybody from my side condemned you for trying to enjoy the same interests I have. I have literally introduced you to several of my most cherished and beloved hyperfixations (Epic, Lord of the Rings, WoW and and possibly GWAR) and I will strongly go against anyone who will prevent me or demonise anyone I have ever cared about for enjoying the same things I do. Yes, my autism does cause me to be overprotective of my special interests but I still try to expose them to the people who mean a lot to me. For example, I paid over £100 in Uber fares to go see the extended LoTR trilogy with a friend when it was showing at a cinema about half an hour away by car. I've bought people videogames just so they could play them with me and experience what I love. If you are even aware of my current financial situation, you would understand how both of these are incredibly serious. I even wanted to buy Dove R.E.P.O so we could play together, even when our relationship was on the rocks.

“They also have shown that they have a clear disliking towards me because I apparently am wrong for forming an alter from the same source as theirs. Often times it'd get so bad that I had to hide that I've had new alters for months because they'd get hostile over it” [1]

Yes we have had alters that are iffy on doubles but that never meant we were upset about you developing an alter from sources we used to like. We as everyone else is aware that development of an alter/part isn't controllable. We gave you the heads up that the alter wasn't okay with doubles but it was never an issue that you got into the same interests. If that was expressed back then, we apologise for it. Alters mostly do not even care of doubles within my system meeting others with similar or same sources now, but you were the same with some alters being iffy on doubles so we're both dealing with this issue.

““Taken accountability” isn't saying you will take accountability and then backtrack and never do. You know exactly how abusive you were towards me and [Dawn].” [1]

This entire document, we’ve been giving examples and apologising for the shit we put you through. We are not in denial that we did things to hurt you and that in many circumstances, we were the bad and we acted poorly. The aim of this document is to show that this was a mutually toxic relationship between us three and that none are mature enough to deal with any of this. I intend to reach out for psychological help to deal with my personal issues because I have reflected on how I have treated you all poorly and need to assure that such behaviour isn’t repeated in future relationships if I choose to date again. However, due to my ailing physical health as a result of my neurofibromatosis and other conditions, this has delayed my mental recovery. Once my physical ailments have been dealt with to a manageable level, I plan to continue to seek intense mental health help to assist my recovery and to become a much better, less impulsive and less envious person. I don’t like the person I was in that relationship and hope to be rid of that bastard in the future as we grow. This goes for everyone who has been affected by my actions. I can’t apologise enough, really, but sometimes actions will speak louder and greater than words.

“You've gone behind our backs and talked shit about us both and have painted us both as the bad guys until we had to split ways.” [1]

We were all mutually toxic to each other. We each bad mouthed each other behind each other’s backs. To my knowledge, the situation that this is referring to was caused by Dove telling us that he felt physically unsafe around Dawn and began sharing other concerns and opinions with me on the subject. Dawn came to me to discuss the issues as well from a perspective of alter to alter. Eventually, you two did patch things up which I am happy about, however I do apologise for how we reacted back then and for our mishandling of the mess. But we still refuse to take the blame for the entire situation referenced.

"Probably worked good for you until Dawn found out that you're cheating no? You also gaslight us into thinking that you role-playing with others without our permission isn't cheating when it clearly is, and if it isn't it's breaking a boundary that we set and therefore toxic. You refused to accept you're in the wrong over that too and instead gaslight me into thinking that I'm apparently wrong." [1]

It must be stressed that the roleplaying they are referencing was not romantic nor sexual at all. It was literally just standard every day roleplaying as characters from a biscuit videogame. The comparison is closer to cast members at Disney World or that guy who dresses up as the Grinch at Universal Orlando during the Christmas season than Fifty Shades of Grey. And not to mention, any "flirting" was not in any way genuine in intention the same way that cishet guys on Marvel Rivals making gay jokes isn't cheating either. We even went to Dawn ourselves to discuss this situation and they didn't consider it cheating at the time of discussion either. Dove didn't set the boundary of no-RPing at all until the argument itself and we did in fact follow that boundary they set and deleted the account following the blowout. We defended ourselves to Dove but still understood it affected you emotionally and decided hurting you wasn't worth pretending to be a baked good on social media.

Our resilience on the subject was boosted by not only Dawn's opinion but the input of other friends. We apologize for any distress that has caused.

"Handling this as a grown adult is the worst shit I could possibly do because people like these aren't worth shit." [1]

Touché.

"I won't be replying to any of them anymore because it shows that if nobody [his friend] is stalking me and is showing stuff to Solar, I mean they did respond to me within a day when I decided to actually expose what they've been doing behind closed doors" [1]

Dove would go on to update this document further which I shall be responding to as they appear.

Response to Statement #2:

Several key points of statement two were removed before we could properly archive them, however we shall still respond to what is available in the current accessible document. We apologise for our mistake.

"I'm back to update this stupid document because Solar is an actual piece of shit that doesn't deserve any solace or peace... Hey Carnage/Saint/Solar whatever name you're trying to take to escape accountability. [2]

The name change was never a decision to escape accountability, just like how you changed your name from"Indica" to now "Dove". This was purely done to match our new persona as we felt the name "Carnage" didn't fit us anymore. We thank you for not doxxing our real name, but please be aware that referring to us as "Carnage" is a form of deadnaming, although not as serious as if it were my birth name. If we were trying to escape accountability, we wouldn't be using the same account as this one to publish and discuss the information. I have had the same main Discord account where everything you allege has happened since I was 16 so even if I rebranded time and time again... It would all be the same accounts.

"Can we bring to light how you had shota rps? How you actively "rp date" minors behind our back and justify that by saying it's just role-play and it's nothing bad?" [2]

What you first reference there (the alleged "shota RPs") were from when I myself was a minor and was groomed into the ageplay fantasies of actual adults. I told this trauma to people in confidence and privacy and the fact it's now being used against me to smear me as some sort of predator is disgusting. I was groomed as a child into doing it and as an adult, am uncomfortable by such content. I had a friend who engaged in such online roleplay which led me to cut ties with them as I personally find that type of stuff to be pretty gross. I haven't spoken to that person in four years.

Secondly, I never went on "RP dates" with ANYONE, let alone anybody under the age of 18, during our relationship. I have no clue where this allegation even originates because it has no basis in reality from my own recollection. I know I suffer from quite bad amnesia, but I feel strongly none of us could put a child through such a horrific thing as us ourselves have been at the receiving end of practically every form of sexual abuse imaginable.

"Here is a small statement from someone I'll keep anonymous for now since they asked so" [2]

We know who wrote this following statement. But they aren't a minor and they weren't a minor during our friendship. We know this because they informed us of their age, it was in their bio and they engaged in activities that only adults are legally allowed to do in their country of origin, such as smoking. We do apologise to them for many issues within the friendship stemming from our emotional immaturity, anger issues and other dilemmas tied to our reluctance to receive help for our problems. To put it flatly, we were a dickhead. But much like the case with Dove, we weren't the only dickhead. However, we will still respect their privacy like Dove has thankfully done.

"Hi, sorry if this is random and it's sort of a nothingburger really but i'm somewhat one of solars/carnages exes as well from around 2023/2024." [2]

We aren't ex-partners. We never dated and we never even decided to take it to any level near that at the time. We were, to my knowledge, close friends and became each other's favourite person (or FP, for short). You were also an adult at the time, not once did you ever say otherwise. Yes, we floated the idea of maybe dating in the future when we got to know each other more but that idea never went far because of the issues within our friendship.

"solar recently found my new account as i've set this one to private and began randomly liking my repost which is how i found out about everything going on." [2]

We found your account because you found us first. You liked one of our art pieces and we noticed your username was familiar so we asked you who you were. In response, you blocked us and we looked into your account some more. We noticed your profile picture was in the art style I've known you to use so after realising this, we blocked you back and quite frankly we want nothing to do with you after the friendship ended. At some point, I would've wanted to apologise and ask how you're doing but I had forgotten your username. It's been almost two years since we last spoke and I apologise for my behaviour in the past and I do regret it, but I believe this is uncalled for.

"I don't really know if this is of any help as I'm sure what you've experienced is proof enough, but everything I've read sounds exactly like what carnage would do to me and why we 'broke up' before ever becoming official." [2]

We didn't break-up because we were friends, not partners. We weren't "becoming official" because of reasons stated before. We admit to being nasty at times, but a lot of things during the friendship took a toll on our mental and physical health. The anxiety the relationship caused me left me bedridden for nearly two months, with IRL friends increasingly concerned for my wellbeing to the point where discussions of having me being sectioned were earnestly in consideration. It wasn't romantic, it was hell. For both of us. Please don't call it anything close to a romantic relationship.

"especially with the cutting and threatening to harm themselves if they didn't get their way (for example, me hanging out with other people) or the nonconsensual sexualization as they often took me talking about our characters as a 'go ahead' to say they were touching themselves to the thought of me and talking about meeting up." [2]

There are many separate claims made within this one quote so I'm going to respond to it bit by bit.

- In reference to the cutting claim, we don't recall threatening to cut ourselves if you didn't hang out with us. If we did we're sorry for that but we cannot remember. We remember Dove threatening such things during that relationship, but we don't remember threats from either side of our friendship regarding self harm. Yes we had and still do have jealousy problems and we're learning to get out of that mindset when it comes to close FPs but threatening to cut, to my recollection, never crossed our mind. We did make remarks to our feelings of jealousy, but we don't remember threatening self harm because of them.

- In regards to the claim of nonconsensual activities, the character talk was never taken as a 'go ahead' to "touch ourselves" over you. To reveal private details, we rarely (if ever) masturbate to the thought of people and especially not friends. When it did happen, it was a rare thing between romantic partners and was discussed beforehand to receive consent. Due to past trauma of being on the receiving end of sexual violence, clear consent from both parties has always been imperative for anything even remotely erotic.

- Yes, we both spoke about meeting up. But this wasn't around the 'talks' of our characters and AUs. This was about helping you out of your home so you can actually live in a better, less dangerous environment as a result of the abuse you were experiencing. A similar thing occurred with Dove, too. With Dove's permission, we planned (in extreme detail) an escape route for them to leave North Macedonia and resettle in the UK to escape abuse. The talks about meeting up weren't with any kind of sexual intent. We wanted to help you get away from the physical abuse you'd talk about to a better place with a social support network and ample job opportunities.

"This is probably going nowhere. It was just sort of crazy to me finding people who shared my experience and also really terrifying knowing my new account was found and solar wanted me to be aware of it by liking stuff I reposted and then two days later posting about their exes and former friends." [9]

The new account wasn't deliberately found as discussed a bit earlier on, I was never aware it was even your account to begin with. As stated earlier, too. I'd also like to point out that it wasn't me liking your reposts, you liked one of my artworks. I genuinely don't think I liked stuff you reposted by going to your profile. I only ever look at my for you page on Twitter.

"One of our main issues was carnages pedophile friends whom he'd insist have changed only to accidentally expose they were doing 'shota' erps and in the process of trying to defend that statement also telling on himself about him trying to get his ex back as he actively talked about us dating 'when i felt ready'. (he was already telling everyone, my friends included that we were together without me knowing)" [2]

Firstly, the pedophile friend you're referencing was the friend we dropped 4 years ago. The 'accidental exposure' wasn't accidental. I had told you that was in the past and we had been forced to do that with this person and others at a young age. Yes I am quite frankly aware of our issues with dropping friends, but believe me, it has gotten a lot better since then. Those 'friends' have been long gone and I do not condone that kind of appalling behaviour. Although I don't know what you're referring to as 'trying to get his ex back' however.

And yes, of course the talk of dating floated around sometimes, but this was when we both felt ready. It was early and barely even a year into our friendship, but we had agreed that before the consideration of dating occurred it should be after a year or more. Again, I had never told anyone we were dating either. We respected that.

"sorry again if this is random and not really giving much, i'm about to go to bed and unsure if messaging was even a good idea. I think to an extent it's just nice knowing I'm not delusional and that did all happen despite his denial as I don't feel confident talking about it to my friends." [2]

Despite this happening to the two of you, we are genuinely sorry for reacting how we did back then and then letting it come back when we dated Dove and Dawn. I have said this before and I will say it again: I am trying my best to get help, I'm reaching out to professionals and IRL friends more confidently to try to prevent these behaviours from happening again to this extent and hopefully at all. The only issue is that my physical health has worsened and is preventing me from seeking the mental help I need. But the good news is that I will be taking a around four and a half hour bus journey to actually receive help from people who know my physical health issues inside and out. Despite medical issues taking up my time, I am constantly seeking out ways to help myself mentally even if it's asking my caretakers and getting suggestions or recommendations via them in the meantime.

There is absolutely no denial that during our friendship I was not a good person at times. I'm not against that nor am I hiding that fact. I know I've been wrong and I know we mess up a lot of the times because there's no way we're perfect. I can't deny that. So all I can really say is that I am deeply sorry for what I did to the people I once cared for and hope they understand that I am seeking help to prevent these issues from appearing as I grow. It's not forgiveness I seek, just understanding that my apologies are sincere and so are my declarations of wanting to do better.

"I'd say take it with a grain of salt because they've sadly lost their proof of Solar doing any of this. However if you want to be around me we stick by victims and not abusers." [2]

When it comes to the "proof" the individual might have, it would still refer to when I was forced into doing these roleplays. I've never said I'd do it as an adult, but an ex friend/partner manipulated me into doing those things when I was younger. Yes I was attached to said friend for a while but they've been long gone out of our lives for years now like I've said. I've gotten a lot better than being the doormat this person knew me as.

However, you say you're a victim yet I'm a victim too, the stuff you've done to me as well is equally abusive, which. I've already mentioned some of it within this document. You want to paint yourself as the good guy yet things you have done (as well as I) aren't very 'good guy' esque. I'm in no way shape or form trying to paint myself as a good guy either. No one was the good guy in our relationship and that much is obvious.

"I can proudly back this up by saying I have proof of Carnage role-playing with minors. Everything that was said is explicit and I'll refrain from showing here in this document because some of his boot lickers like to say I shouldn't be sharing vulnerable information about someone." [2]

If you don't wish to have this information be made public, I would appreciate it if you could share this info privately with me. Because I don't roleplay sexually with minors, I am interested in seeing what exactly this could be. My "bootlickers" (funny, because my amputation makes it so I can only wear one boot at a time) would also be interested in seeing this proof you have. You are willing to show stuff as private as my self-harm scars in your document, so I have no idea how this proof you have is any different.

It must be clearly stated that you also alleged one of my closest friends was a "groomer" and claimed that you had the evidence to back it up. That evidence being... Nothing. That friend got into an internet spat with a deranged individual who made heinous accusations against my friend because it didn't side with them on an issue. My friend also confronted you about these allegations and you basically admitted to having no proof, no document and no actual verifiable allegation. Just some vague memory of insults being thrown its way during an unrelated drama. The fact that you went back to edit your first document should demonstrate to everyone how baseless the claims you've made about it, myself and many others are.

"Solar has also gone as far as to cut himself and show us explicit vent art of him hurting himself. He has also gone as far as to show us the cuts and other forms of self harm he's done without prior consent." [2]

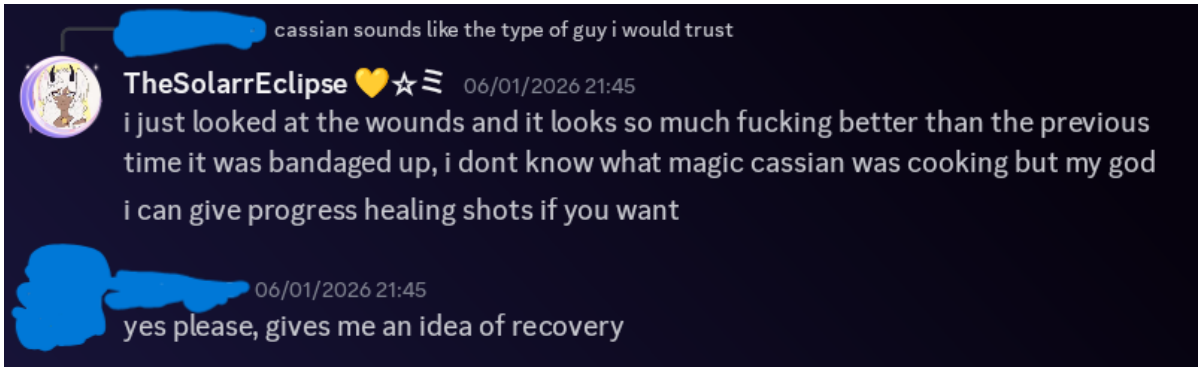
Despite us being fine with the cut being shown publicly on our own terms, we have decided to censor it for anybody who is squeamish or triggered. Dove, however, decided to leave the image uncensored without consent beforehand. We condemn this behaviour fully and request for the cut to be censored in their document henceforth.

They provide this screenshot in their document, however it misses vital context. Firstly, my use of the word “also” refers to prior discussion of my wound. Secondly, the wound is healing and is obviously not a fresh scar as can be seen by the bandage and pus buildup. Lastly, the image was censored. How do I know this? We usually censor images with any injuries, let alone self-harm scars. As can be seen in this recent conversation with a friend:



cassian sounds like the type of guy i would trust

i just looked at the wounds and it looks so much fucking better than the previous time it was bandaged up, i dont know what magic cassian was cooking but my god i can give progress healing shots if you want 06/01/2026 21:45
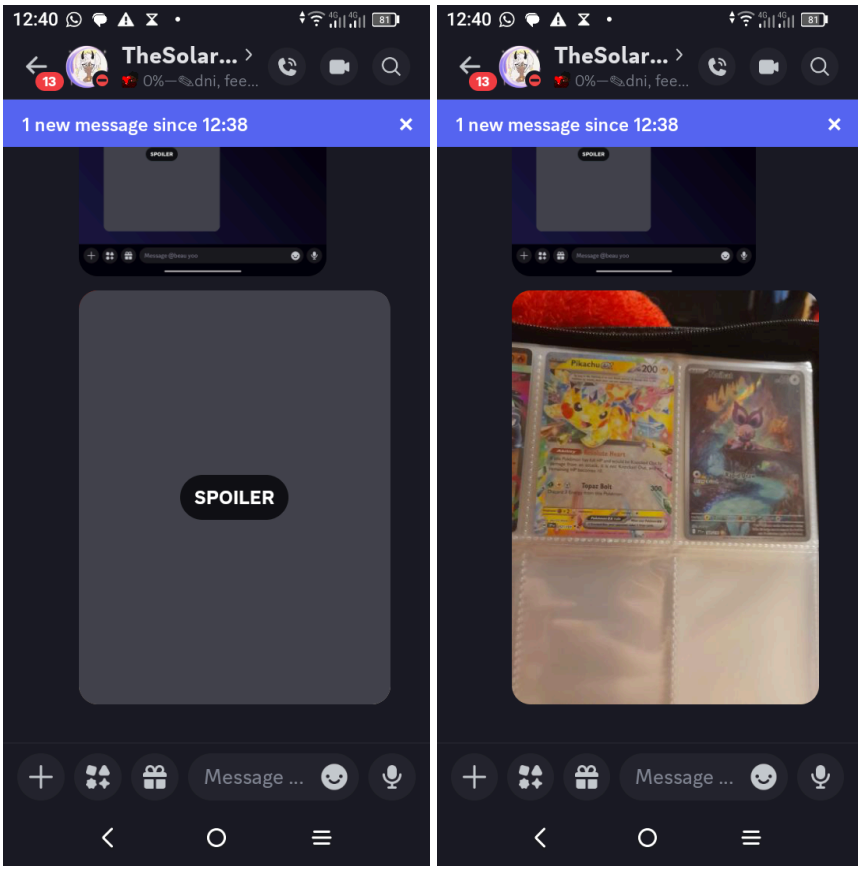
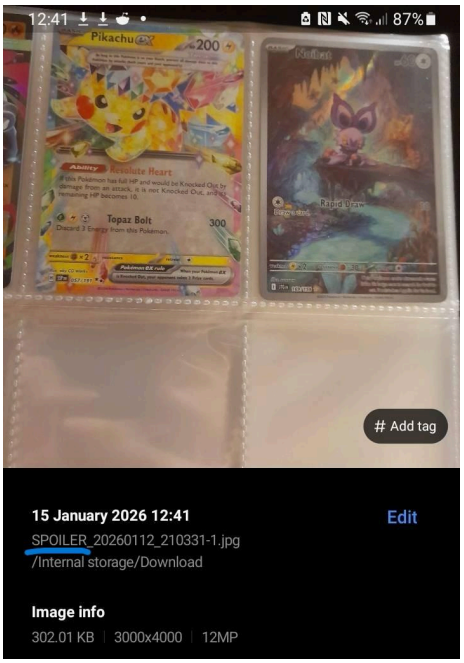
yes please, gives me an idea of recovery

Yes, in the screenshot they provided it appears that I did not censor these images, however Discord does not label previously censored images as previously censored when the person who has received them chooses to uncensor them themselves.

Here is an example:



As you can see, the image does not indicate whether or not it was censored after it was uncensored. However, you can tell if an image has been previously censored by checking the metadata of the image and looking at its name. Which can be noted here:



This is probably why they only posted a screenshot of the image and not the image itself, although we can only theorise because as stated in the beginning of this document they removed us from the chats so we wouldn't be able to defend ourselves.

Yes, we admit we have made mistakes in the past where we forgot to censor the images but we retroactively go back and fix the problem which can be seen in the same recent conversation I mentioned at the beginning of this segment:

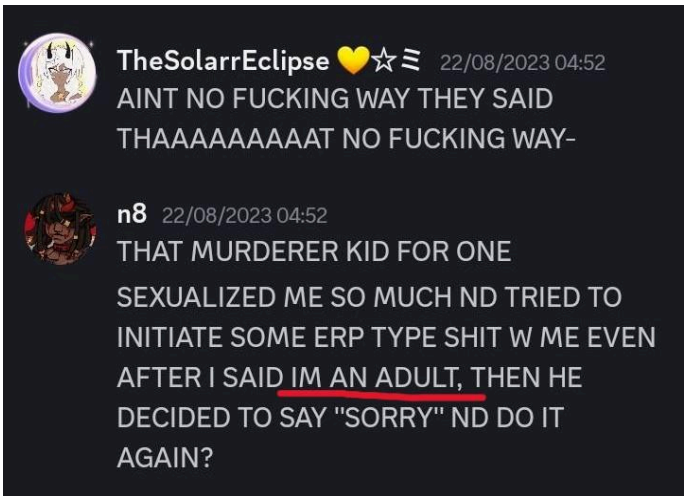
The first three is the first time during the first change
Fourth one is cassians, before it was cleaned rn
Last one, the cuts were cleaned and after that, blasted with antiseptic wound spray, the iodine patches and bam, bandaged up

So for anytime we buggered up in that way towards you, Dawn or anyone else we sincerely apologise for our mistakes and hope it hasn't affected you harshly.

"Solar has actively been abusive and has dated someone (Reihan) as far as I'm aware that is currently 19, making them 16-17 while Solar was 20-21 while dating. You can do with that information as you please."[2]

I was in a brief situationship with Reihan in late 2023. Within days of first meeting, they admitted to me in context of them being harassed by a teenager on VRChat that they were an adult at the time:



TheSolarrEclipse 22/08/2023 04:52
AINT NO FUCKING WAY THEY SAID THAAAAAAAAT NO FUCKING WAYn8 22/08/2023 04:52
THAT MURDERER KID FOR ONE SEXUALIZED ME SO MUCH ND TRIED TO INITIATE SOME ERP TYPE SHIT W ME EVEN AFTER I SAID IM AN ADULT, THEN HE DECIDED TO SAY "SORRY" ND DO IT AGAIN?

As can be clearly seen, they told me they were an adult before we ever engaged in anything romantic or sexual. Later, more personal conversations also reiterate this fact. Sadly, the relationship ended and the friendship did as well later down the line. We did fuck up sometimes and thankfully we all ended things amicably after we realised we just weren't compatible as friends anymore. It's sad but it happens and I'm sorry they were dragged into this.

"I have been often left alone and ignored by Solar and pushed into a corner where I either ablaze what he wants or I suffer being ignored which as far as I know is emotional manipulation." [2]

I have never purposefully ignored you nor pushed you into a corner about anything. Everyone close to me knows I don't, and oftentimes can't, reply immediately. I never intentionally 'left you alone' for anything. A lot of the times I have been busy or inactive, everyone knows or should know I don't respond immediately when I'm emotionally and or physically exhausted. I have a life, I have medical issues to deal with. If I'm having a medical emergency or finally getting sleep after three days of being awake which leads me to not respond to your message about what character you pulled in Cookie Run, it should not be the end of the world for you.

The 'emotional manipulation' was never intentional. The ignorance you so speak of wasn't either. You know my insomnia issues, you know my medical history to an excessive extent, you know I can't respond in five seconds flat. I've already spoken about this, but saying you'll kill yourself and then ghosting, worrying the living daylights out of us, I'd say is equally just as bad as whatever you consider emotional manipulation.

"Solar would also get really really agitated over me hanging out with Dawn, threatening to cut himself if I hung out and then backtracking and saying stuff like "if you hang out with Dawn I'll hang out with [a different friend]" (a known abuser of his) putting himself in danger as well as making us or whomever he would be dating at the time into a frenzy for his safety" [2]

You would often tell me that you didn't feel physically safe around Dawn. I became really worried for your safety, not as a form of control but as someone I cared for. It was like telling me you were scared of dangling over a vat of acid and then continuously telling me that you were dangling over said vat of acid. Of course I'm gonna be concerned for your safety and well-being. The friend you mention has never been a "known" anything. In fact, they were the person who helped me arrange and plan-out the escape plan for you leaving your abusive household and legally immigrating to the UK. Maybe there weren't a lot of things we agreed upon in regards to knowing said friend again after a couple years of hanging out with them, or a past neither of us feel comfortable expressing about because we're both idiots but they have helped me a lot with medical situations especially. But even as friends now, we can both fall out with one another but at least we're both actively trying to work on that or seek help.

I don't remember threatening to harm myself if you hung out with Dawn, it seems extremely out of pocket for me to even say that, but if I have I apologise. There were also times you'd often tell me you'd invite them over regardless so you don't do something stupid but, matter of fact is, there have been numerous cases where that would be the case for me, too. This friend lives the closest to me and would drop anything just to make sure I don't commit suicide or something just as stupid . They have done this, even. Literally last Saturday as of writing this because your document was causing me to spiral mentally. Just because I have everyday random issues with people, doesn't mean the person I had that issue with is an abuser. That's like saying that because I disagreed with a friend about what is the most OP Pokemon (Factually, it's Eevee) then it must mean that the whole friendship is toxic and abusive. Like, no. Spats happen between friends. It's natural.

"Solar also has a fine line of going to harm himself with alcohol and getting drunk while he was talking with one of his ex's. He has also done this with us. Getting drunk and then breaking boundaries just to say "I was drunk" as an excellent excuse after" [2]

First of all, I don't like the over-consumption of alcohol, especially in cumbersome amounts. I will mention I'm drinking but to my recollection this was fine. You however would constantly go out to the pub (or anywhere that would serve alcohol) with Dawn more times than not, drinking constantly with them, hell even needing either Dawn or Ace (if Ace hung with you two to monitor your safety while you were under the influence in public).

Second of all, it's pretty much impossible for me to get absolutely smashed from alcoholic beverages to the point I'd not remember conversations previously had. Let alone to use it to harm myself or get drunk. I have an intolerance to high-amounts of alcohol where my body goes into an immediate hangover when too much has been consumed. I can't even properly feel the "buzz" until it's too late and I find myself vomiting it all up. My body doesn't have a normal reaction to alcohol, I rarely, if ever, feel "drunk". If this was a frequent occurrence, I'd quite literally be in debt. We do not have this kind of money for high volumes of alcohol in order to be heavily under the influence and all the cheap stuff tastes like petrol and piss.

Thirdly, I don't think I've spoken to ex's when under the influence, let alone at all. To my knowledge, if I did it was mostly to you and Dawn because we knew y'all were okay with this all things considered.

Lastly, using 'I was drunk' as an excuse when I've had alcohol is something we never would do. That to us, is abnormally disgusting and we don't condone those behaviours or excuses. Especially with my uncle being the way he is.

Though I can't remember breaking boundaries over this, I apologise. But boundaries were broken on both sides on the topic of alcohol if what you've said about me is true.

"Here is some of the proof I could gather as if far. I am severely derealizing over this situation and I appreciate [Solar's friend] for talking to me about this and updating me about the entire situation. I'd like to backtrack and say that I take my words back about [it]. That's all I'm publicly willing to share."

What you said about my friend cannot be erased or backtracked. You might think it's gone for good, but we have screenshots of what you said and will be tackling that horrific can of worms later in this document. We aren't doing it without the permission of the friend either. It is fully aware of the gravity of what you said and how awful it was to it and how such a foul statement must be addressed. It's probably one of the worst things I have ever seen said publicly about anyone and I am still in shock that you would think that it's okay to say that in any situation, regardless of "derealization" or not. Personally, it was a side of yours that I was in denial of during our relationship but seeing that, what I can describe as literal evil, was eye-opening and frightening. This will all be addressed in part three.

Now, onto the screenshots you provided of a dispute we all had:

You're right about that, and we both talked about it and came to an understanding about it we just didn't expect YOU to badmouth us to each other while telling us your sweet sweet "lies". How are you going to manipulate us and then tell us you want a future with us? Paint us as the bad guy? Have you considered how that would make us feel? Have you considered that that's toxic to do? Hell I'll even go as far to say that's straight up abusive. You didn't give us the assurance we needed and now we feel used and lied to. We loved you to heck and back and you did this to us? What did we do to deserve this. What did we do to you that was so bad that you decided to take such a dark path over this entire thing. You could've made it very clear that you've been wanting a future with us both and we would have worked towards that and tired to mend things instead of you pulling strings to manipulate not only me but hyas sys too

Now, I am a bit confused on what this has to do with anything. This is a snippet from a fight we had months ago during an insanely hectic part of our lives. Even if the messages you show, I admit wrong-doing with how I handled things. To be completely honest, during this specific ordeal we were all mentally and emotionally unstable. We remember crying in front of a Costa Coffee because of the aggression everyone, including myself, was partaking in. I stand by my apology then and admit my wrongdoing. I have no idea what this proves or disproves, it just shows that we went through a shithow every so often. Which should be obvious. I am so confused by this.
More confusion arises in this next part:

Oh
You could've just said that

I am unsure what this has to do with anything related to this document. In fact, I'm pretty sure this makes you look bad. I jokingly tell you that my friend hasn't left yet and won't leave until quite late, I respond to you with a "Why not?" because you hanging out with friends until late is very common and then you take issue with me hanging out with a friend at all. And then when I explain that the reason they're staying late is because of delays in regards to transport which somehow clears things up? I have no idea what any of this has to do with anything.

Also, I'm an adult. I was literally 22 when this was sent, why is it terrible for me to have a friend over at eleven? It's not 1952. It made no sense then, it makes no sense now and it is especially senseless with why this specific example is being included. My god.

Here's also something completely unrelated to the situation:

"That's all. Thanks, genuinely. I will be expecting a public apology over this from specifically Saint/Solar and nobody else. I don't want an apology from you but the people you've hurt in the long run deserve one. They need to hear that you're sorry for your actions and that you will improve." [2]

A finger curls on the monkey's paw.

"It's the least they deserve after you've actively witch hunted them and made them feel unsafe no?" [2]

Firstly, I have never actively 'witch hunted' anyone, let alone ex friends and partners. I dislike disturbing ex partners and friends unless we were on good terms and both wanted to remain in contact with one another. I'm not going to control my friends and force them to stop anything, especially when they're concerned about my mental health and well-being.

When it comes to actual witch hunting however, I am hunting down two individuals unrelated to this fiasco who are outright disgusting people. I mean, one of them is a borderline Neo-Nazi pedophile and animal rapist. I don't condone nor tolerate any of these behaviours. Hence why I'm working with the literal FBI and their county police to get them taken down. That is the kind of witch hunting I do. I don't do it for petty things such as exes and ex partner dramas.

"Okay rant over fr this time. Final opinion is that I'm going to leave this doc up and I will let it hang in the air because people deserve to know about it. That's about it really" [2]

Reader, that was not "about it". Really.

Response to Statement #3:

Even though we started this document originally with a content warning, it should be restated here. If you have any issues in regards to the celebration of rape being shown, then please click away. This final statement that Dove has tried to hide is very much that.

"[Solar's friend] has been exposed as a groomer. I don't give a single shit how much [it] defends [itself] by saying [its] improving or has never done that." [11]

Since you wrote this, you've had a talk with this friend and now know these claims aren't true. Much like the claims you've made against me. Keep to yourself about these things unless you can back it up fully, you were never even given context. Just a few tweets about that situation in the past. Public tweets, mind you.

"Victims first as [it'd] say. Really sorry about you getting raped recently [Solar's friend] but you did groom people and put them in danger which seems as if though this would be karma" [11]

This is just a new level of low I didn't expect from you. Despite this part being taken down, you still publicly said this. This is still something you said openly. You're announcing a rape threat and saying it's fine because it's 'karma', that is genuinely disgusting. We both know how that feels and to be threatened with that stuff is just down right evil. You cannot defend yourself and claim you're a good guy when you're openly, actively and publicly announcing 'Hey this person deserves to be raped."

Like, how fucked up in the head do you have to be to celebrate rape? I've tried to stay civil through-out this document, but that is by-far the cruelest thing you've done and I'm including the shit that went down in our relationship. You should feel ashamed of yourself. A deep dark shame.

You can't pretend that you care about the harm that sexual abuse causes when you publically state you aren't against the act of rape in of itself by celebrating when someone you dislike becomes the victim of it. You don't actually care about victims, you care only about winning internet arguments. You're using rape as a weapon. An apology means nothing, rape isn't justifiable. Go fuck yourself.

"All of his little lapdog team is, who would have guessed, small pieces of shit that would excuse anything under the earth to make Solar seem like he's right. [His friend] about the same really" [11]

You're shocked my friends defend me on the internet when false allegations arise? False allegations that I've disproved to them when they confront me about them in private? You're annoyed that people don't believe every word you say, especially when you've been mean to them and lied to them in the past? No one is obligated at all to believe you immediately. Dove, I think you're very simple minded and immature. You have the intelligence and emotional maturity of a 13 year old on Amino with access to alcohol and cigarettes. You treat serious allegations as "gotchas" and as a way to gain perceived moral authority over others. You're in your twenties now. You need to grow up and stop treating life like it's a fucking fanfic. I'm not saying I don't apply to those criticisms either, I'm saying it takes one to fucking know one. Learn to leave your arrested development.

Also, it's "under the sun" not "under the Earth". You've could've make a great fucking pun but you ruined it. God.

"Neither of you deserve a fucking platform from what you've actively been doing to minors and underage folks. I'm sick and tired of your stupid mentally abusive games you play on everyone and putting everyone into a fearful state of mind where they're too afraid to even speak up about their abuse." [11]

Honestly Dove, I know I'm a fucking dago but I'm not a mafia mob boss. I don't have the materials, funds or power to put legitimate fear into people. I wouldn't even do that if I did. I also haven't been actively doing anything to minors. Speak about the abuse all you want, please do in fact. I want to learn from my past mistakes. I know I've been in the wrong, and it's not like we won't be working on getting better. It takes time, it doesn't happen within a day or two, there will be hiccups and there will be times it goes back to square one. I admit that. But when I'm in a clearer state of mind and my medical problems aren't causing too many issues, it'll be easier to help myself. But, I won't be afraid to speak up about the "abuse and fear" you put into me too. You've also done wrong, but you can't and won't admit that.

"Fuck off, and please, leave me and everyone else the fuck alone. You're worth nobody's time. And I'm only doing this because I refuse to stay silent about what you're doing behind closed doors." [11]

I'd gladly leave you alone like I originally wanted to. The same goes to many others! I'm no miracle worker, I make mistakes just like everyone else. We aren't perfect, neither are you and people need to acknowledge and accept that fact. But thank you, I know I'm not worth most people's time (I have self-esteem issues), but at least I don't currently stoop as low as you by putting minors in danger by actively sharing and promoting self harm and eating disorders. I'm quite public about my wrongs. Those "closed doors" are made of glass, my friend. My friends have genuine concern and care for my wellbeing and know I can be good and have been better now we're not in a relationship with you and Dawn. What I've learnt from that relationship is not to be who I was then. But another thing I have learnt is to never be who you are right now. Thank you for being an example of the person I should always avoid being. A spiteful obsessive possessive narcissistic feckless pathetic bastard who only cares about being in control and looking like the moral superior. You disgust me. Truly.

If I'm not worth "anybody's time", you can stop vague posting about me on your main and your SH/ED account. It's just sad to see someone devout themselves to something they call "worthless".

"Glad to hear the hospital visit is shit. Hope it gets fucking worse." [11]

So, you really think you're the top shit wishing someone's already severe and chronic medical conditions get worse? You know damn well I have had four major operations on my back for my scoliosis and way too many on my amputated stump to count. You know how bad it can be for me, we literally became friends on the internet while I was in hospital. So the actual fucking audacity you have by not only threatening and celebrating rape to my best friend, but you wish I basically die from how bad my medical conditions are already? Like I'm not one to speak about these conditions unless someone asks or is interested in what's happened to me to the point I'm downright scared of hospitals, to the point I'd refuse to even go to accidents and emergencies to get something little (or big) checked over.

This is genuinely just absurd to me. You know that I'm wheelchair bound and even in some cases, bed bound. My conditions are no joke and despite how shitty some people can be, I'd never wish anyone to have what I have, I'd never wish malpractice on anyone as well (which is what I've experienced with my amputated leg and my back as a kid).

I just don't get why people like you have to stoop this low just to get your 'point' across, to make you seem like you're in the fucking right, hoping that someone's medical conditions get ten times worse than they already are (which is already chronically online as is).

If this was a private dark joke towards your friend group then sure, fucked up dark jokes but at least it wasn't publicly announced that you're okay with the worsening health of disabled people. You sound like a eugenicist.

Dove. I'll be so fucking honest with you? Keep that bullshit to yourself. Keep it to your friends privately, I don't need to hear that from you. Make vent jokes in group chats with the understanding it's just that. A vent. But publicly stating it goes past it being a vent joke, it becomes canon to your beliefs and your own humanity.

That's like me saying I hope your heart conditions get worse. I've never wished that on you and I still won't till this day because quite frankly, I am not the scum of the earth like you've become. Am I a bastard? Yes. Absolutely! A cunt? Of course. But I'd never go to those levels of awful by publicly calling for you to die by a heart attack. Hell, when we were together and you'd tell me it could explode we were worried sick for you. But now I know that worry was one-sided because deep down, you were praying for my downfall.

Please, as will I, take this time to heal and be a good fucking person instead of insult, threaten and celebrate sickening things onto other people, especially people you despise and hate. I am done with people like you.

You're not playing fair and I think everyone can see that. I hope everyone who has been affected by your malicious nature comes to their senses and understands that you're not the perfect little angel you pretend people think you are. Because I sure as hell don't think I am an angel, nor do I think you are one either.

And by the way, it's not hard to use the correct pronouns. I thought I'd just mention that randomly here. Mine are currently They/It/Sun/Star/Fae. I don't necessarily care too much, but it'd just be nice.

I've had people think I'm faking my amputation or scoliosis, and that makes me laugh now as I look back to it because how the fuck can I Photoshop my leg amputation, my pretzel for a spine, or the pain I go through that makes me near or actually passout and breakdown from how fucking bad I experience it? And I have a high pain tolerance too. I'm on paracetamol, ibuprofen, naproxen, noratriptaline, pregablin, morphine and fucking fentanyl to deal with the severity of the pain and it still breaks through. I can barely leave my bed and if I sleep the wrong way, I could spend weeks in hospital getting the rods in my back replaced. That should put into perspective how much I go through with pain alone. I don't have the time or capability to fake my amputations, my scoliosis, or just time in general to fuck with people or get into people's head that so called fear you speak of. You're suffering from severe delusions and paranoia and you need serious psychiatric help.

Please grow up. This isn't 2016. You're not a teenager. Once again, you are an adult. Please act like it instead of throwing insults willy-nilly all over the place thinking you're the shit. You're not. You're just shit. Hypocritical for me of all people to say after losing all credence and serenity after you celebrated the rape of my friend, but as stated before... Takes one to know one. And believe me, there are a billion more things I could say about you but to keep everything concise and less hurtful I have one last thing to say to you.

Dove. Get help. This is a life-long battle with yourself.

Epilogue

I want to thank everyone for reading this. This has been mentally draining and borderline traumatic but we felt that people have the right to be educated on this subject to come to their own conclusions. We only ask for people to understand one thing: There is no “good side” to this story. There is no villain, there is no hero. This is life. And life is not a fairy tale.

Don’t harass or even just contact anybody mentioned in this document. If you do, you’re no better than any of us and it should be evident that we are not the people anyone should strive to be. Do better than us.

If you want to help out people directly, don’t waste your time sharing this document. Instead, take your time and maybe even your money and use it to support these North Macedonia-based charities that help people affected by the subjects discussed in this document:

- UNICEF North Macedonia
- ARNO
- Отворена Порта
- AC North Macedonia
- Volunteers Centre Skopje
- Здружение за сексуални и родови малцинства КВИР ЦЕНТАР Скопје

We thank you all for reading and we hope you have a wonderful rest of your day.

Sincerely,

- Solar
